Sir ji

If we want to make Jaipur a smart city, first we need to prepare responsible and aware citizens who follow the rules or regulations of local government. The problem is that nowhere is governance is working properly. Take two examples of civic nuisance in Jaipur. First is encroachment by house owners in front of their own housing unit. On Patel marg and Neelgiri marg in Maansarovar every house is of HIG category and residents are highly qualified and well-to-do but most of them have made cemented podium or wire fencing 10-15 feet on the road and park their vehicle on road because they know that the flailing local bodies will not take any action against their illegal act. Second the violation of traffic rules (and even no common sense) on roads especially at choraha and railway crossing is a big problem. The vehicle and driving licence must be cancelled on the road and law breakers must be punished promptly and effectively.
